After several years with the "We are in progress of major overhaul of our website" statement on our website homepage ... the time has finally come.

By taking the advice we give to clients, we followed the KISS principle (Keep It Simple Stupid) - that design simplicity should be a key goal and unnecessary complexity avoided. It serves as a useful principle in a wide array of disciplines, such as software development, animation, journalism, photography, engineering, and strategic planning.

As time goes on, we can slowly integrate more features, functionality and content, but the base needed to be establish. So we have worked nights and weekends to get it ready for launch, while continuing to serve our valued client during the day.

Some new features include:

- Built in our preferred CMS - Content Management System
- Fresh, new work in our portfolio
- Our new blog with visitor commenting enabled
- eNews signup to get the latest news, info and more from Adonai Media

Now that our site is "finally" integrated in the same content management system that we build for some many of our clients, we can keep it updated with our freshies and latest happenings. We are excited to say the very least.

Enjoy!
